

CONFIDENCE AGREEMENT

THIS AGREEMENT is made this 23rd. day of October 1979, by and between CELANESE CHEMICAL COMPANY, INC. a corporation of Texas (hereinafter Celanese) and REDOX TECHNOLOGIES INC. a New Jersey corporation (hereinafter Redox):

WHEREAS, Redox has invented a chemical process for the production of ethylene glycol (hereinafter Redox Ethylene Glycol Process) which it believes is of great commercial value; and

WHEREAS, Celanese wishes to receive from Redox confidential or proprietary information about the Redox Ethylene Glycol Process in such detail as Redox may decide in its own discretion to enable Celanese to evaluate the commercial possibilities of said invention and to enable Celanese to decide whether it wishes to enter into negotiations looking toward the acquisition by Celanese of rights to said invention and/or the said information relating thereto,

WHEREAS, Redox is willing to disclose said information to Celanese on the terms and conditions set forth hereinbelow:

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the premises and of the mutual undertaking hereinafter set forth, the parties hereby agree as follows: